ChatGPT employs the PyTorch library for its implementation and consists of multiple layers, each with a specific function.

As highlighted in their AI Day presentations, Tesla's engineers use PyTorch to build and train the complex deep learning models that perform real-time object detection and scene understanding.